Before you choose to download (or purchase) a Windows product, you should activate Windows. By default, Windows will be activated during the installation, but it's possible to change that after the installation. How to activate Windows 10 in easy steps If you are using Windows 10 Pro, then you can activate it using the official Windows Store. You can find the Windows Store in your Start menu and from here you can activate your Windows 10 easily. In Windows 7, Windows 8, and Windows 8.1, you can use the Windows Settings > Update and Security > Activation to activate Windows. Just scroll down until you see the "Hardware and software" and then click on "Activate Windows". Windows 7 users: In Windows 7, you can start the activation process from the Start menu. From the menu click on Control Panel and then go to "Settings". After that, click on "Update and security" and then "Activation". Windows 8 users: In Windows 8, you can find the option in the same way as you did in Windows 7. From the menu click on Control Panel and then "Settings" and from there click on "Update and security" and then "Activation". Windows 8.1 users: Windows 8.1 users can get the activation option in the same way as in Windows 7 and Windows 8. Just scroll down and click on "Activation". Windows Vista and Windows XP users: Windows Vista and Windows XP users can access the activation option by clicking on Start and then on Settings and then on Update and Security and from there click on "Activation". While you are in the Activation window, just press the Windows key and then press the R key. Your Windows will be activated now. How to change your Windows 10 product key If your Windows is activated then you can't perform any changes to your Windows. If your Windows is not activated then you need to activate it first and then you can change your product key to activate your Windows easily. If you want to change your product key, then you can do that by contacting Microsoft support. To change your Windows 10 product key, follow these steps: Open the Start menu and then click on Settings and then on Change PC settings. After that, scroll down
