Whether you agree with it or not, the Internet does an amazing amount of damage every single day. It affects our economy, our schools, our politics, and our everyday life. The question is, how can we stop it? Is there an end to its destructive power? What kind of society will we have to live in after the Internet? These questions and more are explored in the documentary titled, "Ethics Beyond High School," where high school students from the Baltimore area share their opinions about the subject. Through personal stories and debate, they look at what the Internet has done for them and the world around them and question the ethics of how we use it. The documentary explores the various problems with the Internet and the people who use it. Many of the students and teachers that have been interviewed in this film are well-known figures in the Baltimore area. They are well educated, hard working, and very intelligent. They are also very passionate about the subject of ethics and the Internet. You will be left thinking that you didn't know anything about the Internet until this documentary. Who makes this film? How to create rules for Internet Explorer to block advertisements?Mitsubishi Triton was a minicar developed in Japan that came with a 2.0 litre 4-cylinder engine. It was popular in the 70's. Mitsubishi doesn't manufacture this anymore but there are still a lot of them around. Let's see how to fix a Mitsubishi Triton engine. It is a simple procedure which can be finished in less than an hour. It's a matter of removing the engine cover and putting the pan back in place. It is done that way because the bottom of the engine is where the most parts of the engine are located. If we unscrew the four bolts from the bottom, we will be able to take the top cover apart. Once it is off, we can see that the piston rings are already present on the bottom. It's going to take more than an hour of work for the 4 bolts to be taken out. The rods must be removed before we can unscrew the head. There is no indicator or sign to tell us if we are in the right way to remove the piston. Here is a diagram that shows what we have to take care of while removing the head. In order to gain access to the piston, we have to unscrew the bolts holding the head. We have to remove those bolts and the cotter pin will be visible. We can take the head apart with our hands or we can use a socket to do it. Here you can see what the head looks like. It is in one piece and we can see the piston at the bottom of the cylinder. All we have to do is take the piston out and put it in a bucket. The head is held in place with bolts on the left and right. We can see one of them is already removed. We can take the remaining bolts out and open up the head. We have to pay attention to keep the engine cover on because there are cables and tubes passing through it. We have to take the head apart carefully, slowly and with a patience. There will be metal parts that will need to be removed in order to access the spark plugs. If you are a newbie, then it is a good idea to use a mallet to hit the metal parts. You can also get a long piece of a metal rod or a metal rod to hit those metal parts. It helps to loosen them up a bit so you can remove them easily. Before we unscrew the spark plugs, we can see that there is a metal casing that goes over the spark plug. We have to be very careful and avoid hitting the casing because it might break. We can use a big bolt driver to loosen it up. The bolts are loosened a bit. We can move on to unscrew the
