AutoCAD LT is a legacy software product. History The software version history began with AutoCAD Classic as the first release in 1982. AutoCAD was originally marketed as a product for drafting, but in 1986, it was first released for architectural design. An add-on toolkit for architectural design, MicroStation, was included as part of AutoCAD LT (Level II). In 1986, AutoCAD was released for Mac. A 1986 AutoCAD LT Release 2 added the ability to read and write DWG files in common format, enabling the interchangeability of CAD files between AutoCAD and other CAD software applications. AutoCAD Macro Edition was released in 1989. AutoCAD 2000 and AutoCAD XP AutoCAD 2000 released in June 1996 was a major upgrade with new features and technology and a revised user interface. The first release of AutoCAD XP in October 1997 was the same as the 2000 release, but it added new features including a high-speed tapered Crease tool, the ability to overlay a 2D view of a 3D model, and a 3D Revolve function. AutoCAD XP SP3 (AutoCAD Xpress Point 3) was released in December 2000. The first release was built around the new AutoCAD Xpress Point feature, which included a number of new features including a new parametric taper tool, new 2D and 3D views, and new 3D modeling tools. AutoCAD XP SP4 (AutoCAD Xpress Point 4) was released in February 2004. New features included an in-place link function in the 3D Modeling Toolbar. AutoCAD XP SP4 also introduced the ability to import and export models using the AutoCAD native file format, the DXF file format. AutoCAD LT 2010, AutoCAD 2011, and AutoCAD 2012 AutoCAD LT 2010 (AutoCAD Lite 2010) was released in May 2010. Independent Scottish Police Complaints Commission The Independent Scottish Police Complaints Commission (ISPCC) is the independent police complaints commission in Scotland. It was set up by the Scottish Government to investigate complaints made against the police and most complaints are investigated by the Complaints Commission for Scotland (CCS). It has its offices at 155 Canongate in Edinburgh, in close proximity to the Scottish Parliament Buildings and Holyrood Palace. History The original Commission was established in 2005 to respond to the widespread public dissatisfaction with the existing complaints procedures. The Commission operated a service for three years until March 2008 when it became a limited company subject to the Corporations Act. In August 2015, the Scottish Government confirmed that the ISPCC will operate as an independent body for a further two years. In May 2017, the ISPCC announced that it would no longer be a limited company, and that it was considering two options: becoming an unincorporated company or remaining as a limited company. ISPCC's Complaints Strategy The ISPCC has published a Complaints Strategy. Impact In 2013, data published by the ISPCC shows that in Scotland the average response time was just 27 days. The Scottish Government notes that in some cases this was not due to bad service, but because the complaint had been dealt with. Recognition The Commission has received many awards for its work since its creation including the Queen's Police Medal in 2010 for raising public awareness of police complaints in Scotland. In 2006 the Commission was awarded the UK public body of the year.
