Also, I have no friends to socialize with. In addition, I spend all my spare time on studying for classes, having my science lab, doing homework, learning how to play chess, and working on the school's club activities. I love it in Boston, there are people from all different countries and religions. However, I am very homesick. I don't want to study at Boston University anymore. I want to go home. I'm really bored of living here. My friends don't like to hang out here at the dorms, and the people here are all quiet and strange. I am really homesick. I can't stay here. I want to go home. abstract: 'Motivated by the recent observation of the 0^+$ \rightarrow 0$^+$ excitation in ^{12}C, we have developed an electromagnetic dipole-dipole model for the excitation process. We calculate the transition probability and the transition strength and show that the 0^+$ \rightarrow 0$^+$ strength in ^{12}C is reduced by about a factor of 1.8 compared to the results obtained in a meson-exchange model. We argue that these results may be due to a change of the spatial distribution of the matter density in ^{12}C in the vicinity of the skin of the nucleus.' address: - 'Gesellschaft für Schwerionenforschung mbH, Darmstadt, Germany' - 'Institut für Theoretische Physik, Universität Giessen

What's New In?

Fonix is a new variant of ransomware, which was discovered by Kaspersky Lab in 2019. Fonix is a typical ransomware, which silently encrypts and locks a victim's data without asking for money. Just like many other ransomware variants, Fonix uses dynamic RSA keys, which expire every day and need to be renewed by a victim's ISP. Once the RSA key expires, Fonix ransomware displays a ransom note, which informs about the situation. Next, the ransomware developers implement special key generator, which uses the victim's nickname and the current date. Therefore, the key generator generates a random key and stores it as a 256-bit encrypted file, inside the encrypted folder. In order to lock the user's data, Fonix ransomware encrypts a directory with each file, which is stored inside the encrypted folder. As a result, a victim gets a ransom note and a folder with all files encrypted by Fonix. One of the most important things about Fonix ransomware is that it uses the Ransom Note Generator application, which is actually just a text editor that allows Fonix to create ransom notes and display them during a session. Fonix decryptor is an effective decryption tool, which unlocks Fonix encrypted files and folders by creating a single 256-bit RSA key, which is derived from the victim's nickname and the current date. Therefore, when the user tries to open one of the locked files, the application will ask the victim to pay in Bitcoin, as a ransom. However, to decrypt Fonix files, the decryptor uses a master RSA key, which is generated for free. Therefore, any victim can use this tool and pay the ransom, provided that
