Treatment of cardiogenic shock in 2 patients with human T-cell leukemia virus type 1-associated myelopathy/tropical spastic paraparesis and refractory cardiogenic shock by intra-aortic balloon pump and hemodialysis. Little is known about the clinical significance of human T-cell leukemia virus type 1 (HTLV-1) in patients with cardiogenic shock (CS) and myelopathy/tropical spastic paraparesis (MSP). We present two cases of biopsy-proven HTLV-1-associated myelopathy/tropical spastic paraparesis (HAM/TSP) associated with CS and treated with intra-aortic balloon pump (IABP) and hemodialysis. A 67-year-old man and a 55-year-old woman, with no history of thromboembolism, were admitted with CS. Both patients had bilateral sensory disturbance, dysesthesia, muscle cramps, and slight gait disturbance. The findings of cerebrospinal fluid and magnetic resonance imaging showed a demyelinating pattern. Both patients were positive for HAM-antibodies. Both patients underwent IABP and hemodialysis. The IABP enabled the patients to recover from CS and lead an independent life within a month. The IABP may be the alternative treatment strategy for HAM/TSP with CS.>>Please just link the iso :-) Ok, I admit that I don't understand your mail. I would need a browser/animated wallpaper simply for testing. And indeed it must be possible to run the Emdebian system from an ISO file as your mail suggests. Anyway, this was supposed to be a resumé, right? Then please take the the next step, if you have some spare time. (By the way, what should I do if I can't or don't want to install a whole system?>>We (the Team of National Instituto Superior de >>Tecnologia or Instituto Tecnológico de >>Pelotas) decided to compile the Emdebian 1.0.1 >>and we found a few things that we had to fix. >>You can download the file at: >>
