Conclusion {#sec1-4} ======= The peak of fatigue and pain occurs at about 3 days postoperatively and starts decreasing at about 7--10 days. The final period of 6--9 months is better tolerated for cataract operation. It is evident that local anesthesia with topical phenylephrine hydrochloride is more effective as compared to injection. Source of Support: Nil Conflict of Interest: None declared Pages Saturday, February 11, 2009 Food for thought I am on a guest right now to find a good way to cook whole wheat pasta that doesn't leave me disappointed. I've been on a quest for years now and I feel like my kitchen is fairly well stocked with all kinds of premade pasta, but I still find myself frustrated when it comes to something other than spaghetti, or penne. Perhaps this pasta quest will lead to a trip to the nearby full-service grocery store and subsequent discovery that the company I rely on is marketing some pretty unusual brands of pasta. Regardless, I thought I'd provide a list of some of the things I've found in the food section that have piqued my interest. I am not familiar with any of these products, so I don't know whether they are sold where you live, but I wanted to put them out there so you could learn about them as well. And if you have any suggestions, please, share! * Amalgam: Although I don't cook with it much, I've seen it in my mom's pantry and
